NEIL SMITH

PRESIDENT and GENERAL MANAGER

Born: January 9, 1954
Toronto, Ontario

Through the first five years of his tenure at the helm of the Rangers, Neil Smith has become one of the most successful men to ever run the club in the 68 year history of the franchise.

Last season, Neil's diligence and persistence to build the Rangers into a Stanley Cup Championship club came to fruition on June 14 when the team captured the fourth Stanley Cup in franchise history, defeating Vancouver four games to three. The championship was the culmination of a record setting season in which New York set a club record with 52 wins and 112 points. The Rangers captured their second Presidents' Trophy in the last three years and became the first team since the Presidents' Trophy was established to win it, along with the Conference Championship and Stanley Cup in the same year. Following the season Neil was awarded with The Hockey News Executive of the Year Award.

In his first three seasons as general manager after joining the Rangers on July 17, 1989 New York finished in first place twice and second place once, marking the best three consecutive finishes in club history. The Rangers also captured the Presidents' Trophy as the NHL's Regular Season Champions in 1991-92.

Neil's outstanding accomplishments with the Rangers were recognized following the '91-92 season with two tremendous honors.

First, he was named the NHL Executive of the Year by The Sporting News, as voted by NHL general managers and governors, becoming the first Rangers executive to ever capture the award.

Then on June 19, 1992, he was promoted to the position of president and general manager, becoming the ninth president in Rangers history and the first president to also hold the title of general manager.

Neil has built the Rangers through his extraordinary ability to recognize talent and by making bold moves when necessary.

Following the 1994 Stanley Cup Championship season, Neil has continued to improve the club, acquiring Petr Nedved from St. Louis, Glen Featherstone from Boston and Mark Osborne from Toronto. On August 9 he promoted Colin Campbell, whom Neil brought to the organization from Detroit in August of 1990, to head coach.

Through the NHL Entry Draft, Neil has added players like Sergei Nemchinov, Alexei Kovalev and Sergei Zubov to the Rangers roster, while loading the organization's depth chart with top prospects at every position: goaltenders Corey Hirsch, Jamie Ram and Dan Cloutier; defensemen Mattias Norstrom, Eric Cairns, Lee Sorochan, Adam Smith, Maxim Galanov; and forwards Peter and Chris Ferraro, Niklas Sundstrom, Dimitri Starostenko, Rudolf Vercik, Jeff Nielsen and Sergei Olympijev.

In addition, when given an opportunity to improve the club through trades or signing free agents, Neil has acted quickly to add even more talent to the Rangers lineup.

In his first four seasons as general manager, he made deals to acquire Mark Messier, Jeff Beukeboom, Eddie Olczyk, Kevin Lowe, Glenn Healy, Jay Wells and Joey Kocur and signed Adam Graves and Greg Gilbert as free agents. Last season he upgraded the team's talent level by obtaining Steve Larmer and Nick Kypreos in November, while making trades to acquire Glenn Anderson, Craig MacTavish, Brian Noonan and Stephane Matteau at the trade deadline.

A native of Toronto, Ontario, Smith played junior hockey at Brockville, Ontario, before entering Western Michigan University, where he became an All-America defenseman as a freshman and team captain in his second year. In September of 1991, Neil was inducted into the school's Hall of Fame, the first hockey player ever given the honor.

After being selected by the New York Islanders in the NHL Amateur draft and playing two seasons in the International Hockey League, Neil joined the Islanders scouting department during the '80-81 season.

Following two seasons in that capacity, he joined the Detroit Red Wings in 1982 as director of professional scouting and soon after became director of their entire farm system.

Smith was then named director of scouting, and general manager/governor of the Adirondack Red Wings of the AHL, where he won two Calder Cup championships.

GRAVES CAPTURES THE KING CLANCY TROPHY

Last season Adam Graves on-ice contributions to the Rangers were quite clear, as he set a team record for goals in a single season and helped the Rangers to the Stanley Cup Championship. His off-ice contributions, however, usually don't get quite as much attention. At least that was true until June 16 in Toronto, when he was named the winner of the 1993-94 King Clancy Memorial Trophy, which is awarded annually to the "player who best exemplifies leadership qualities on and off the ice and has made a noteworthy humanitarian contribution to his community." Graves, who serves as chairman of Family Dynamics and the Greater New York City Ice Hockey League, became the first Rangers player to capture the award.

How Chemical helped Hartz Mountain spread its wings around the world.

Tom Seaver's Business Hall of Fame

Leonard Stern, Chairman and CEO, the Hartz Group, with sons Emanuel and Edward Stern.

"In 1926, a penniless young man named Max Stern set sail from his native Germany with 5,000 canaries from the Harz Mountains in Bavaria and a dream of making it in the land of opportunity.

On his arrival in New York, a customer directed Max to a bank where the manager spoke German. The bank let Max open an account without the minimum balance—and the pet and pet supply business Max called Hartz Mountain was born.

Headed since 1959 by Max's son Leonard, Hartz has blossomed into an empire of widely successful ventures in real estate, publishing and, of course, pet products.

And Leonard happily reports that his two sons are now a big part of the company's future. Emanuel is a senior manager in the real estate group, while Edward is a senior manager in the pet supply business.

Which explains why Hartz is still using the bank where Max made that first deposit.

'Chemical stayed with us when my father bought out his partner,' says Leonard. 'They helped finance our expansion. They arranged the financing to help us reacquire 25% of the pet products company after it had gone public. And they put up the money when we bought the Meadowlands.'

It's all a part of Chemical's enduring commitment to growing businesses and the people who own them—a commitment that's made Chemical the leading bank for business in the tri-state area.

The Stern family knows how to aim for the top. That's why they're in Tom Seaver's Business Hall of Fame.

Because to make it in this town, you gotta have a dream. And you gotta have a bank that shares it."

BINGHAMTON RANGERS

BINGHAMTON RANGERS COACHING STAFF

Al Hill
Head Coach

After completing his first season behind the bench as the head coach of the Binghamton Rangers, Al Hill enters his second season as head coach of the club.

Hill was named head coach on August 19, 1993 after spending the previous two and a half seasons as an assistant coach with Binghamton. He returned to the AHL after serving as an assistant coach in New York from January 4, 1993 through the remainder of the season.

Hill, 38, originally joined Binghamton as an assistant coach in August of 1990 after holding the same position with the Hershey Bears. He was teammates with former Binghamton coach John Paddock with the Philadelphia Flyers in 1979-80 and played on two AHL Calder Cup Championship teams in Maine and Hershey (1988).

A former NHL center, Hill played in 221 National Hockey League games, all with the Flyers. In his first game, he scored two goals and three assists in a 6-4 win over St. Louis on February 14, 1977. The five point total remains a record for most points by a player in his first NHL game. Al and his wife, Deanna spend the off-season in Hershey, Pennsylvania with their children Justin and Jarrod.

RANGERS ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

With the motto of "Keeping in Touch with Tradition," the Rangers Alumni Association has become an increasingly more visible organization.

The association participates in various charity softball games and hockey games throughout the year, while many of the members of the RAA often represent the Rangers at golf outings and youth hockey clinics.

Last year the Rangers Alumni faced off against an NHL Legends All-Star team as part of the festivities for the 1994 NHL All-Star Game which will was held in Madison Square Garden on the weekend of January 21 and 22.

One of the association's most prestigious events is the annual RAA Golf Outing. At the golf outing held in September the Rangers honored Dave Maloney, Walt Tkaczuk and Lorne "Gump" Worsley.

A Brief History of The New York Rangers

The Rangers' Official Emblem

The New York Rangers have thrilled fans for 68 seasons with exciting hockey and notable achievements, most recently the club's proudest moment — the dramatic 1993-94 Stanley Cup championship.

After finishing atop the NHL during the regular season, the Rangers defeated the New York Islanders and Washington Capitals in the first two playoff rounds, then came from behind to win the Eastern Conference championship on Mark Messier's third period hat trick in Game Six and Stephane Matteau's double overtime goal in Game Seven against the New Jersey Devils. They defeated the Vancouver Canucks in another seven game thriller, with captain Mark Messier scoring the Stanley Cup-winning goal.

The Rangers' fourth Cup and the numerous franchise records set last season continued a long, distinguished history marked by outstanding team and individual performances. In the past five years, those performances have included three division titles and two Presidents' Trophy seasons for the NHL's best regular season record. But success is not new for the Rangers. From the outset, the club was among the best in the NHL.

The NHL granted Madison Square Garden a franchise to operate its own team for the 1926-27 season, following the initial success of the New York Americans, who began play in the Garden for the 1925-26 season and would become the Rangers first arch-rivals. Garden president G.L. "Tex" Rickard chose University of Toronto's Conn Smythe to build his team and Smythe assembled a talented roster, including future Hall of Famers Frank Boucher and Bill Cook, who with Cook's brother Bun formed hockey's top line; Hall of Fame defenseman Ivan "Ching" Johnson, who effectively teamed with Taffy Abel; and second line winger Murray Murdoch, who would become hockey's first "iron man," playing 508 consecutive games. Sportswriters dubbed the team "Tex's Rangers" and that was the origin of the club's name.

Prior to the start of their first season, however, disagreements with the Garden management caused Smythe's exit. On the eve of the club's first season, the task of guiding the Rangers was handed to one of professional hockey's pioneers, Lester Patrick, who grew to be the Big Apple's most visible and quotable hockey man. Patrick directed the Rangers to a first place finish in their opening season (with Bill Cook winning the league scoring title) and, led by Boucher's scoring heroics, their first Stanley Cup in 1927-28. It was the last time an NHL team has won the Cup as quickly as its sophomore campaign. During Game Two of the 1928 Finals against the Montreal Maroons, the 44-year old Patrick substituted for injured goaltender Lorne Chabot in one of hockey's legendary moments.

With hard, clean play and innovative tactics, the Rangers became known as ithe classiest team in hockey,ī going to the Finals four times in six years. Regularly among the leaders in assists, Boucher epitomized the club's style, winning the Lady Byng Trophy so frequently, the league allowed him to keep the original silverware and struck a new award. Bill Cook won a second scoring title in 1932-33 and in April, his overtime goal in Game Four of the Finals gave the Rangers a 1-0 win over Toronto and their second Stanley Cup title. Cecil Dillon's scoring and Andy Aitkenhead's goaltending led the way for Patrick's club.

In their first 16 seasons, the Rangers missed the playoffs only once, and only twice did they fall lower than third place. New York won three regular-season championships in that span, finished second five times and third on six other occasions. The Garden became the place to be on nights the Rangers played, attracting a "dinner-jacket" crowd which often included other sports figures, Broadway entertainers, New York's society elite and City Hall politicians. The Rangers built an empire and New Yorkers loved it.

The Original Rangers gave way to a new group of stars in the late 1930s. Patrick acquired goalie Davey Kerr from the Maroons in 1934 and defenseman Art Coulter from Chicago in 1936 and they became the backbone of the next great Rangers team, which lost a five game Final to Detroit in 1937. Three seasons later, Boucher succeeded Patrick as coach and the Rangers won the Cup again. The 1940 Rangers were led by the dangerous line of Hall of Famer Neil Colville, his brother Mac and Alex Shibicky. Hall of Famer Bryan Hextall, Phil Watson, Dutch Hiller, Alf Pike, Clint Smith, Kilby MacDonald and Lester's son Lynn gave Boucher great depth up front. Lester's other son Muzz helped form a solid defense corps with captain Coulter, Babe Pratt and Ott Heller. Hextall's overtime goal against Toronto in Game Six of the 1940 Finals was the decisive tally in the Rangers third Cup championship.

Two years later, the Rangers finished atop the league with the Watson-Patrick-Hextall line dominating league scoring. But World War II had already begun breaking up this collection of Ranger All-Stars. In the years that followed, the club struggled. In the next 13 seasons, the club only made the playoffs twice. Still the Rangers featured outstanding individual talents. Buddy O'Connor became the first Ranger to win the Hart Trophy as NHL MVP in 1947-48 and goalie Chuck Rayner won the Hart in 1949-50, the year the Rangers lost a seven game overtime Stanley Cup Final to the Red Wings. Edgar Laprade, Hy Buller and Bones Raleigh were standouts in the late Forties and early Fifties.

In the 1950s, a fertile farm system and some deft trades improved the team's fortunes. Hall of Famers Andy Bathgate, Dean Prentice, Harry Howell, Bill Gadsby and Gump Worsley, along with Camille Henry, Andy Hebenton and "Leapin' Louie" Fontinato helped the team back into the playoffs in mid-decade. Bathgate, who became the club's captain and all-time leading scorer, won the Hart Trophy for the 1958-59 season. Hebenton played 560 consecutive games as a Ranger and Howell became recognized as one of hockey's best defensemen and was awarded the Norris Trophy in 1966-67.

A Rangers Renaissance began in 1960s, directed by coach and general manager Emile Francis. Beginning in 1966-67, the club made the playoffs nine consecutive seasons, the only NHL team of the period to accomplish that feat. Led by Rod Gilbert, who eclipsed Bathgate's club scoring records, and his linemates Jean Ratelle and Vic Hadfield, the Rangers were again an NHL powerhouse. All three became All-Stars during the period as did defenseman Brad Park and goalie Ed Giacomin. Reliable two-way players like Pete Stemkowski, Steve Vickers and Walt Tkaczuk helped round out the team. In 1971-72, Hadfield became the first Ranger to score 50 goals in a season and that year the Rangers faced Boston in the Stanley Cup Finals, losing a tough six-game series.

Following a two-year absence from post-season play in the mid-1970s, a new group of Rangers emerged led by stars Anders Hedberg, Ulf Nilsson, Barry Beck, Ron Greschner, Phil Esposito, John Davidson, and the Maloney brothers, Dave and Don. The Rangers dramatically marched to the Stanley Cup Finals in 1979, defeating their new arch-rivals, New York Islanders in the semi-finals before bowing to the Montreal Canadiens in a five game Final. While the Rangers would not reach the Finals again until 1994, they built a good team and it took the best teams to defeat them. Beginning in 1979, the clubs that eliminated the Rangers in the playoffs over each of the next nine seasons all went to the Finals or won the Stanley Cup.

The hiring of Neil Smith as general manager of the Rangers in 1989 began the process which led to the 1994 Stanley Cup championship. Smith acquired center Mark Messier from Edmonton for the 1991-92 season and Messier led the club to the top of the league and was recognized for his efforts by winning the Hart Trophy that season. Messier became the driving force that propelled the Rangers to the Stanley Cup. Through timely trades, keen drafting and opportunistic free agent signings, Smith pieced together as talented a club as the Rangers ever had. The emergence of new superstars like Brian Leetch, Mike Richter and Adam Graves, who broke Hadfield's 50 goal mark in 1993-94 as well as a wealth of potential superstars like Sergei Zubov and Alexei Kovalev make the future of the New York Rangers brighter than ever.

STEVEN McDONALD AWARD

Following the 1987-88 season, the Rangers, in conjunction with Mitsubishi Motors, established a new award dedicated to paralyzed New York City police officer Steven McDonald. The award was named the Steven McDonald "Extra Effort Award", and is presented annually to the Rangers player "who goes above and beyond the call of duty," as Steven did as a New York City police officer. The winner is chosen by Rangers fans who vote on the award from February through April.

McDonald, a lifelong Rangers fan, was shot in the line of duty on July 12, 1986, in Central Park. He spent 18 months in the hospital and watched video tapes of each Rangers game during his recovery. Several Rangers players visited him in the hospital and presented him with a jersey.

He grew up listening to Rangers games on the radio and watching on television but had never been to a game in person. His heroes included Eddie Giacomin, Brad Park, and Jean Ratelle. He now attends a good number of games during the season, sitting at ice level in the zamboni entrance.

The inaugural winner of the award was Jan Erixon in 1987-88. NHL rookie-of-the-year finalist Tony Granato captured the award in 1988-89 before Kelly Kisio and John Vanbiesbrouck were named co-winners in 1989-90. Jan Erixon became the first repeat winner of the award in 1990-91.

For the third consecutive year, Adam Graves captured the prestigious award. Graves has now won the award in each of his first three seasons with the Rangers.

Along with the trophy, Graves received a 1994 Mitsubishi Galant, courtesy of Mitsubishi Motors, while Mitsubishi also presented their annual check for $15,000 to the Steven McDonald Foundation.

LARS-ERIK SJOBERG AWARD

For the sixth consecutive year, the New York Rangers, in conjunction with the Professional Hockey Writer's Association, presented the Lars-Erik Sjoberg Award, symbolic of the best rookie in training camp.

Sjoberg a, 180-pound defenseman, came to North America in 1974 after a distinguished nine-year career in Sweden, along with fellow countrymen Anders Hedberg and Ulf Nilsson. The trio were three of an unprecedented six Europeans signed by the Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association, that year helping blaze the trail for Europeans to play in the NHL. Sjoberg, who served as Jets team captain for five seasons, led the Jets to three WHA Championships during the 1970's. "Pound-for-pound, he was one of the best defensemen who has ever played the game," said Jets teammate Bobby Hull.

Sjoberg joined the Rangers staff on July 22, 1980 when he was named as the team's European Scout. He held that position until he passed away in October of 1987. In his time with New York, the Rangers drafted several European players who went on to play in the National Hockey League including, Reijo Ruotsalainen, Jan Erixon, Peter Sundstrom, Tomas Sandstrom, Kjell Samuelsson and Ulf Dahlen.

The 1993 recepient of the award was defenseman Mattias Norstrom. The native of Stockholm, Sweden was appearing in his second training camp with the Rangers after being selected in the second round, 48th overall in the 1992 NHL Entry Draft.

Previous winners of the award include Peter Andersson in 1992, Tony Amonte 1991, Steven Rice in 1990 and Troy Mallette in 1989. The inaugural winner of the award was Mike Richter in 1988.

Frank Brown of the New York Daily News presents Mattias Norstrom with the Lars-Erik Sjoberg award symbolic of the best rookie in training camp.
